Information for Students with Disabilities

College4Kids works with parents and guardians to provide the best learning environment possible for their child. Consequently, College4Kids asks parents and guardians to provide information about any disabilities or special needs of children enrolling in any College4Kids program two (2) weeks prior to the program's start date. Parents and guardians are asked to provide information about the services the child is receiving in school, including, but not limited to, an Individualized Education Plan (IEP), in-class aid, and other services.

In general, students with disabilities who are mainstreamed and receive grade-level instruction in a general classroom without the assistance of an aid are expected to do well in College4Kids programs without additional assistance. For students that need additional assistance, the College4Kids program manager will ask the parent or guardian and the child to come in for a meeting, which may include the PVCC Disability Services Counselor and the College4Kids instructor. Based on the child’s needs, grade level and the services that the child is receiving in school, the program manager, parent or guardian, Disability Services Counselor and teacher will determine the child’s eligibility for the program and reasonable accommodations for the child in class.
